Why did you want to get certified to use the MBTI assessment?

Because it could really add depth and breadth to what I could offer to my clients, really deepen insight and give us another area to work on, whether with an organization, a team, or an individual.

What was the most interesting thing you learned during the four-day certification program?

Learning more about type dynamics combined with the facets moves beyond the traditional view of type and gives you much more insight into people as individuals, versus them being just their type.

Would you recommend the MBTI® Certification Program to a colleague?

Yes, I would. This tool has been out for a long time and people think they know what they're doing with it and understand it, but the past four days have been really phenomenal for me. I can't wait to put what I learned into practice and see how things turn out.
